Searching Ruins for Dead in Chelsea Fire

Photographed by Boston American Staff Photographer.

Chelsea Fire Death List Grows as Search Continues—Two Bodies Found To-day—Seventy-five Persons Are Still Missing.

Two more bodies were discovered in the ruins of Chelsea to-day. This makes fourteen who are known to have lost their lives in Sunday's holocaust. There are seventy men and women still reported missing.

As the search of the ruins progresses and bodies are being uncovered, the belief is growing that the death list will be far larger than at first estimated by the city officials. On Sunday night it was only positively known that three lives had been lost. Since that time no less than nine bodies have been uncovered and two persons have died of injuries.

Find Woman's Bones.

One of the bodies found to-day was discovered in the ruins of the house at No. 152 Cherry street. It was impossible to tell at first whether it was a man or a woman. Gas company employes who made the discovery notified Dr. Guild, former city physician. He examined the bones carefully and discovery of what had apparently been corset steels lying with the remains caused him to believe that it was a woman who had perished there.

At that number on Cherry street lived Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Jason. Both have been reported missing although a man announced at the city information bureau that he had seen them on Broadway when the fire was under control.

It is believed in the absence of any word from the Jasons that Mrs. Jason perished in the house and that the remains of her husband will be found nearby.

Remains of Child Unearthed.

The other body was found by workmen who were digging at No. 68 Suffolk street. As in the case of the Cherry street remains only a mass of bones was found. Dr. Frederick H. Plummer after careful examination said that they were human and in his opinion were those of a child between 8 and 10 years of age. They were taken to the police station.

E. F. Shea of No. 2 Rogers court, Roxbury, identified the body of the boy found near the Standard Oil Company's plant in East Boston and who was seen on the old Chelsea bridge just before it fell in as that of his son, Thomas Shea. Mr. Shea was so overcome by the sight of the charred body that he collapsed and could give no explanation of his son's being in East Boston at the time of the fire. Identification was made at the North Grove street morgue.

There are still two bodies unclaimed at the morgue. Both are those of women.

LOOTERS RIFLE SAFES.

Two cases of looting have been reported to the police. Miss Annie Pratt of the Whitman studio told the police that the safe in her office had been broken open and money and papers stolen.

Bernard Riley of No. 351 Central avenue reported that his safe had been rifled and that a number of valuable papers had disappeared. Investigation is being made of both of these charges.

Despite inquiry made in every direction, Dr. J. F. Fenwick has been unable to learn the slightest news of the whereabouts of his wife and her niece, Mrs. Walter C. Burgess, who with the small employed by the Fenwicks have disappeared. None of the lodgers could contribute in any way the description of the missing persons.

A New Haven despatch to the BOSTON AMERICAN says that the trainer, Jack Mack, of Yale, believes that his brother was lost in the fire. No word can be obtained of his whereabouts, although Mack has sent word in every direction.

Advance Money to Rebuild Homes.

Under the direction of Thomas Henry, chairman, the sub-committee of the general relief forces, is taking care of what they term the needy supplies. They are not giving away money at the present time because they want that when given to be permanent relief. They are furnishing transportation to those who have arranged to go out of town. As fast as the applicants for financial aid are registered their cases are investigated.

It is the plans of the committee to advance money enough to rebuild houses, and rent is furnish lodger men with enough to once more put them, on their feet and enable them to open up their stores again.

Criticism against the committee, the members say, is undeserved. They have refused to give away money until every case can be investigated, and only then when they have the assurance that the amount advanced will be such as will not necessitate another demand being made on their funds.

It is discovered that there had been supplies obtained by persons who were not even residents of the city and that loans had been seen leaving Chelsea loaded with goods given in the supposition that they were going to relieve distress.

BAKER DEATH SECRETS REVEALED AT TRIAL

DOCTOR ON STAND IN WILL CONTEST TELLS OF POISON AND VISION.

In the contest over the will of Walter Farnsworth Baker, which is being waged by his brother, Edward G. Baker, the attorney for the contestant, Frank N. Nay, is probing into the causes of the death of the young clubman, which the coroner's jury at Hackensack, N. J., found was due to arsenic administered by some person or persons unknown.

Dr. C. D. Underhill, of Newbury street, Back Bay, the well-known physician and surgeon, and personal medical adviser of Walter Baker for three years, the first witness to-day in the Probate Court, declared that he never prescribed any poison for his patient.

That Walter F. Baker's mind was abnormal and that he was below par physically, the physician admitted. He declared that Baker's mind was unsuited to business and that he was careless about his affairs and his physical well-being.

Doctor Warned Baker.

The doctor told Baker that he must live an exemplary life if he expected to recover health, and that even then he would be five years in getting well.

Dr. Underhill was cross-examined by Attorney H. E. Bolles and his declaration that he had seen Walter Baker 300 times at least was criticised by the lawyer with many insinuations. Dr. Underhill testified that Baker, at all times, was unsteady and that he had a constant tremor.

During the hearing to-day, Frank H. Hurd, formerly of Bogota, N. J., in whose house Walter Baker died, and in whose four-year-old daughter, Natalie, Baker had left $100,000 of his money, but who has since died, was an interested spectator.

Mrs. Helen Bray Hurd and her beautiful sister, Mrs. Natalie Young, both of whom are in deep mourning for little Natalie, were not in the court room. They are stopping at the Hotel Bellevue.

Doctor First Witness.

Dr. Underhill was the first witness called to-day. Attorney Frank N. Nay, of Bates, Nay & Abbott, counsel for Mr. Baker, conducted the examination.

Q.—Did you prescribe any arsenic or compounds of arsenic for W. F. Baker?

A.—Never.

Q.—Did he ever take any arsenic to your knowledge? A.—No.

The doctor said that because of Baker's illness he would have to send an exemplary life. He told him that with the best of care he could not be cured in less than five years.

"How long was he under your treatment after he came to you with this disease?" "Until the time of his death."

Sat Down on Floor.

"Do you recall when he sat down at one time when he came to your office?" "He preferred to sit on the floor."

"What did he do next?" "He called my attention to how supple he was and liked to sit in Turkish fashion. He sat twenty minutes on the floor."

"If from all the circumstances of the patient and symptoms you observed, I ask if you are able to form an opinion as to his soundness of mind?"

Attorney H. E. Bolles objected. Allowed the question in another form.

"What is your opinion?"

"I found that his mind was abnormal and he was more or less degenerate."

"Whether in your judgment he had testamentary capacity?"

Bolles objected and the question was allowed in another form.

"I think he could not do so."

"What do you base your opinion on, that he was unable to care for his affairs?" "The fact that he paid no attention to my directions in regard to regulating his diet. His unc[illegible] in person, his very quick manner of talking and sometimes repetition. All these showed [illegible] intelligence. His mind was not sound and I had to deal with him differently from ordinary persons."

Was Unsteady in Movement.

"What about his condition did you observe?" "He was unsteady always. He had a tremor."

"Are you a surgeon at the City Hospital still?" "I am. I am connected with a ward where surgery on the ear is performed."

Lawyer H. E. Bolles cross-examined Dr. Underhill.

"How long had you known Walter Baker?"

"About three years, during which time I saw him about 300 times."

"Ever see him except when he called at your office?"

"Very rarely; once in a while I saw him on the street."

"Do you keep any sort of a physician's book or ledger which shows your patients call on you?" "I keep a ledger."

"Does it show how many times Baker consulted you?" "It does, until he began to pay cash."

"How many times does your card ledger show he called on you?" "I will have to count them."

Dr. Underhill then took a number of cards from his pocket and began to figure out how many times Baker had called on him to be treated professionally.

Dr. Underhill said that he figured Walter Baker had been treated by him about 300 times in the three years preceding his death.

Untidy in Habits.

"You say Baker was highly nervous; that he was more nervous than you?"

"Yes, much more than I."

"You say Baker was untidy about his personal appearance; many people are untidy are they not?"

"Not as much as he."

"Where did you go with him to dine?" "The University Club, Lenox, Victoria and other places."

"He wasn't so untidy that you went out to dine with him, was he?"

"Well, I went."

"Have you any other reason to believe he was of unsound mind?"

"Yes, heredity."

"Leaving out heredity, do you believe he was of unsound mind?"

"I do."

"Any other reasons for your opinion that his mind was unsound?"

"Living in New York when his mother was dying and he knew it, his carelessness and many other things give most excellent reasons to believe his mind was unsound."

"Did you think he was unsound of mind before his mother died?"

"Yes."

Talk About Will.

"You have stated that various diseases Walter had had weakened him so that he was far from being a well or sound man?"

"Yes."

"Wouldn't his excessive drinking cause heart trouble?"

"Yes."

"Did you find his heart sound at your examination of him one month previous to his death?"

"Yes."

"What remark was made to the Hurds at the Lenox at 11 a. m. when the party was there after Walter's death?"

"Edward Baker asked whether Walter made a will."

"Who said Walter had made no will?"

"I got just that sure, whether it was Mrs. Hurd or Mrs. Young."

"What other conversation was there?"

"Edward Baker asked for some keys to Walter's safe deposit vault. They were given him."

"Did you go back to the Lenox that day?"

"Yes, at 4 o'clock. Dr. Magrath was with Edward Baker and myself. The same story was told us."

"Did Edward Baker speak of a vision he had?"

"He did, I think."

Edward Had Vision.

"What did Edward Baker say to the Hurds about his vision?"

"He said that he thought he had seen Walter or his mother or both in a coffin. I didn't pay much attention to it."

ANTI-OIL TRUST BILL GOES TO THIRD READING

ATTACK ON THAT "LITTLE MAN," HISGEN, BRINGS STIRRING DEFENCE IN HOUSE.

In spite of the warfare waged against it by the Standard Oil Company through its corps of lawyers and lobbyists, the Hisgen-Coolidge anti-discrimination bill was to-day ordered by the House of Representatives to a third reading after a debate in which the opponents of the bill injected into their arguments a personal attack on Thomas L. Hisgen of West Springfield, the petitioner for the legislation.

The vote on the question was 69 to 32. Representative Bishop of Newton, who has led the fight against the bill, attempted to have the matter further held up with a roll call, but the thirty-nine others failed to support him.

To-day's vote marks a distinct victory for the small dealers in Massachusetts in their fight against the Oil Trust. The bill provides that "no person, firm or corporation doing business in the Commonwealth shall sell their commodity at a lower price in one section than in another for the purpose of destroying or injuring the business of a competitor."

Swings Party Whip in Vain.

The opponents of the bill to-day resorted to every known method of legislative trickery in an effort to defeat it. Representative Underhill of Somerville fairly stormed when he attacked the bill. He endeavored to crack the party whip over the heads of his fellow Republicans, but it didn't work. Then he resorted to another trick.

"I am surprised," he said, "that the Republicans in this House and the Democrats, too, should be led into taking up the fight of a man who is an independent, a little man—I don't call him a big man, because if he was he wouldn't come here to the Legislature crying for help."

Representative Calvin Coolidge of Northampton, who drafted the bill along the lines of Mr. Hisgen's petition, was on his feet in an instant.

"I feel bound to interrupt," he said, "because the gentleman is misleading the House. Does he realize that the 'little man' that he speaks about is waging the fight of the great mass of people in this State, and that he is fighting the Oil Trust which, some of us are so solicitous about, single-handed?

Defends the "Little Man."

"That 'little man' is the one thorn in the side of the Oil Trust in this State. That 'little man' is making it possible for people in his section to buy oil five cents a gallon cheaper than people here in Boston can buy it. If that 'little man' were to go out of business or were he to be driven out of business, the price of oil in every corner of this State would be put up to a point that would make it almost prohibitive. The Oil Trust wouldn't be content to simply drive Mr. Hisgen—and I'm proud to name him—out of business. They would boost the price and make the people pay an extortionate fine for ever having harbored the 'little man.'"

Representative Underhill refused to be convinced. He continued to argue that the bill would prevent competition. A half dozen members jumped to their feet.

"The bill be not an 'anti-competition' bill," said Representative Fred O'Connell of Fitchburg. "It is an 'anti-discrimination' bill, one that seeks to help competition. The gentleman is misleading himself and this House when he says what he does."

A suppressed murmur ran through the House chamber when Underhill injected the personal attack on Mr. Hisgen in his argument.

STORE LOOTED AND BURNED AFTER THREAT

MILFORD, April 16.—Failing in their attempts to secure money under threats of death from John Orer, a jeweler and shoe dealer in the Dillon Block, Main street, Milford, the authors of Black Hand letters are suspected by the Milford police of having taken revenge upon Orer by ruining his store early to-day of watches, rings, pins and shoes, and then setting fire to the place to cover up their crime. The fire caused a damage of $2,000.

The blaze was discovered by Night Patrolman Holmes.

Trays of watches, rings and pins were found upset in the show cases. Fifteen gold watches were missing. Also fifteen gold rings and five pins were gone, and several boxes of shoes were missing from shelves that had not been reached by the flames. This afternoon the police are making a rigid investigation.

Several Black Hand letters have come to Orer within a short time. Each was in Italian and in the same handwriting. The last letter read as follows:

Mr. Orer:

I see you are now in good luck and move in big store and now have money. Our people have no work and are without cent. Look and see a person come to you and give you the sign. Then you must give $1,000. Be sure, and if you don't it is at the penalty of your life. Keep this a secret. Say nothing to police or court house. M.

HOMELESS FLEE STRICKEN CITY

Scores of Victims Begin General Exodus from Chelsea to Seek New Homes in Other Sections.

City officials of Chelsea are confronted with the fact that unless homes can be found for those who were burned out on Sunday, they will lose a number of their citizens. Already a large number of these who lost everything they possessed are making arrangements to live in some other city.

In the plans for the rebuilding of the city the officials want to have it made as attractive that it will be looked upon as a model place for homes. For this reason they want to have the property owners remain and assist in the work.

Many of those who were burned out on Sunday owned their own homes, but indications point to the fact that having settled with the insurance companies they are planning to put their money in other places. The condition confronts those who are already at work on the plans for a new Chelsea.

Help for Unfortunates.

Gradually homes are being found for the very unfortunate who, not owning the houses in which they lived, lost their furnishings and have nothing on which to start anew either in Chelsea or any other town. The housing problem is now the most serious which confronts the relief committee. Enough food and clothing has come in so rapidly that scores have been supplied.

Because of the cold night air the sleeping in tents has worked a hardship on the refugees and is regarded generally as a menace to the health. For that reason the committee is anxious to have all of the homeless placed in good shelters where they will not suffer.

Thousands See Ruins.

To-day thousands of sightseers were about the ruins unhampered by military regulations and able to wander at will about the wrecked streets. Some of the ruins for further evidences of loss of life went on under the direction of the authorities. The ruins are in such condition that they can be easily pulled over during the day.

More families were reunited to-day, more affecting scenes took place in the headquarters where inquiries were made and at the BOSTON AMERICAN Registry Bureau in Naismith's pharmacy, corner of Second street and Broadway. Some of those who found their relatives or friends believed that they had lost their lives in the fire.

On all sides the work of relief is going on. Boston business men, rising to the occasion, have contributed with generous hands to the work of caring for the unfortunates. Money and supplies continue to be forwarded to the stricken city, and it is figured that within a few days the work of relief will have become so systematized that it will be known instantly when any family is in need.

Collections for Homeless.

Collections in three Christian Science churches last night for the benefit of Chelsea refugees yielded a total of $1,853.77. In the First Church of Christ, Back Bay, was raised $1,326.40; the First Church of Roxbury, $245.53, and the First Church, Cambridge, $192.04. Another collection will be made at the Mother Church next Sunday.

The Henry Siegel Company has fitted up a large hall in Chariestown as a temporary home for Chelsea fire sufferers. This has been supplied from the Washington street store with blankets, comforters, sheets, pillow cases and linens contributed by the firm. The basis established by the Siegel store in Chelsea for the free distribution of soup, coffee and sandwiches are doing a rushing business day and night. The supplies are delivered several times a day, and hundreds of the needy have been cared for.

Owing to the fact that many of its employes suffered financial loss in the Chelsea fire, the Megee Furnace Company has made arrangements to render assistance direct from its foundry offices, Marginal street, East Boston.

Boyle Brothers, the Washington street clothing firm, have donated a case of clothing for the Chelsea sufferers. It has been forwarded to Senator George F. Monahan of Charlestown, to be distributed by him where it will be most needed.

To aid members of Masonic bodies who sustained losses in the fire, Masonic headquarters will be opened at No. 126 Broadway, Chelsea, to-day. It will be in charge of a committee headed by Eminent Sir H. F. Crocker.

The Walter M. Lowney Company had forty-seven employes whose homes were burned out. The concern has spent several hundred dollars relieving their distress.

MRS. JACOB HECHT OFFERS TO CARE FOR 35 FAMILIES

Mrs. Jacob Hecht, one of the leaders of Jewish charities in Boston has offered to care for thirty-five families who lost their homes in the Chelsea fire.

Mrs. Hecht has communicated with Mayor Bloomfield of the Civic Service House and asked his assistance in locating those families who need to be fitted out with household effects.

Mr. Bloomfield is engaged in the work of endeavoring to locate those families who will be aided by Mrs. Hecht.

3 WOMEN MISSING; SEARCH ALL CITY

Thousands are searching to-day for Mrs. J. B. Fenwick, wife of a prominent Chelsea physician; her niece, Mrs. C. W. Barnes of Glen Ridge, N. J., and the Fenwick family servant, Miss Elvina Boyer, who strangely disappeared Sunday after being rescued from flames which ravaged the Fenwick residence and burned it to the ground.

Not the slightest clew to their movements has been found from the time they were carried, half suffocated, into the street by firemen and turned over to neighbors to be cared for.

Dr. Fenwick is ill from shock and worry at the home of friends in Clark street. His son, aided by many friends and neighbors, has made a careful search of the hospitals and police stations of Chelsea, Boston, East Boston and other places, but without success. The husband of Mrs. Barnes is here, to-day from Glen Ridge, and is also a grief-stricken over his wife's disappearance. Both friends of East Boston are certain that neither Mrs. Fenwick, her niece nor the servant perished in the fire. One fireman remembers carrying one of the women out safely, and others are of the opinion that the two other women were taken out also. Dr. Fenwick, however, fears all three are dead.

Beyond the statement of a fireman that he believes he carried at least one, if not two women out of the burning building when the fire was at its height in the Bellingham section, not the slightest clew to the whereabouts of either Mrs. Fenwick, Mrs. Barnes or the servant has been discovered. And this notwithstanding that a thorough search has been made.

They have questioned everybody they thought might know something. And in the end, as Dr. Fenwick expressed it:

"It's terrible to imagine, but it seems that our last hope is shattered."

Dr. George B. Fenwick, the aged physician's son, is the last person positively known to have seen any of the three women alive. That was when flames were descending in the house from the roof. They were upstairs, standing together at the top of the first flight. They were preparing to leave.

A moment later, when young Dr. Fenwick returned from his room with some papers he was anxious to save, they were gone.

"I presumed they had escaped," the young man says. "I ran out just as the flames broke on all sides of me. I got out just in time. It seems that if they had escaped we should have heard something from one of them before now."

Fireman Battis of Engine Company No. 11, East Boston, is the man who thinks Mrs. Fenwick was one of those he carried out of a burning building in Chestnut street, and he describes an elderly woman, strongly resembling the doctor's wife.

As for the other women he cannot remember them, but thinks they may have been rescued by some of his companions.

"The woman I took out was overcome by smoke," Battis has said to the Fenwicks. "I turned her over to a man standing in Chestnut street, near the Polish Church, and told him to see that she was taken care of. Then I rushed back to join my company and help get others out."

The "man near the Polish Church" is the person now sought by young Dr. Fenwick for information. Fireman Battis cannot describe him. He has been advertised for in newspapers, and the police have been asked to search for him.

$5,000 LOSS IN HUB SHOPPING DISTRICT FIRE

By vigorous work on the part of Captain Matteson and his fire fighters of steamer No. 26 and Lieutenant Farren and his men of Chemical No. 2, what threatened to be a disastrous blaze in the shopping district was averted early to-day. In response to cries of "fire" by Charles Burland, watchman of the buildings of the Little estate, corner of Boylston and Tremont streets and facing the Common, an alarm from box 55 was sounded by Patrolman Calnero of Division 4 and it promptly brought to the scene all the apparatus in the heart of the city. The blaze started in the fourth floor rear of T. D. Cook & Co.'s cafe, No. 88 Boylston street, and the flames were confined to that portion of the establishment abutting on Van Rensselaer place, and in close proximinity to the Colonial and Majestic theatres. District Chief Sinnett had streams directed from the fire escapes on the Colonial building and with success, for had the flames once reached the Boylston Chambers, the Little structures and met the fifty-mile gale blowing across the Common from the northwest, a dangerous fire would have resulted.

The location and construction of the Van Rensselaer portion made the work of extinguishing the fire difficult. It was more than an hour before the "all out" was sounded.

The third and fourth floors of the building, belonging to the Little estate, were badly gutted, and the loss will approximate $1,000.

W. F. Cook and Manager Royce of the firm estimate their loss at $4,000.

6TH DISTRICT IS FOR TAFT

Declaring unanimously for the nomination for President of Secretary of War Taft, deploring the illness of Governor Guild and praying and hoping for his recovery, as well as urging him for vice-President, and endorsing the administration of President Roosevelt, the Sixth District Republican convention to-day in Salem, carried out to the letter the program of Congressman Gardner.

License Commissioner Charles M. Hoyt of Haverhill and ex-Representative Alfred Vittum of Beverly were elected delegates by acclamation. Ralph W. Deanin of Gloucester and William H. Dove of Salem were elected alternates. Both votes as well as the vote for the Taft and Guild resolutions were unanimous.

President Chaquin of the Senate presided.

SUES BOSTON CLUB FOR RENT

Alleging that Alexander M. Ferris, as trustee, failed to file an assignment with the City Clerk or notify creditors of his appointment as trustee, and that he is not exercising due diligence in the collection of assets of the organization, Louise W. Rogers has brought a legal action against the Boston Club and Ferris jointly, asking that a receiver be appointed to collect all assets and pay all debts of the organization, including a judgment of $1,698 which she holds for rent.

It is alleged in the petition that Ferris was appointed trustee by a gathering of the members of the club, in January, the Rogers woman sued for rent. She alleged the club in 1906 leased property from her in School street at a rental of $5,000 a year, and that nearly half a year's rent was unpaid. She got a judgment, but has been unable to collect it.

QUAKES IN UTAH.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 16.—Five distinct shocks of earthquake were felt early to-day at Milford, Utah, 200 miles south of here. Houses were shaken, but no serious damage is reported.

SCHOONER IS STRUCK BY TUG

Early to-day the fishing schooner Theresa and Alice was boating up the harbor from the fishing grounds. The Boston Towboat Company's tug Falina was going down with a barge in tow. The schooner, which had the right of way, was tacking across the channel when the tug struck her, sinking a hole in her bow. It looked for a moment as though the vessel would sink but the crew manned the pumps while others jammed quilts into the hole.

The tug stopped the water sufficiently for the schooner to make for wharf, where she is unloading. Afterward she will be taken to the marine ways for repairs.

SAYS BANKERS WERE 'BOUGHT'

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Charging that the members of the currency commission of the American Bankers' Association, who came to Washington to oppose the Aldrich bill, have been "bought" by a compromise to support it, Alfred O. Crozier, financial student and writer of Wilmington, Del., caused a sensation before the House committee on banking and currency to-day.

Crozier mentioned no names, but said that one of the members who addressed the committee yesterday had left word for a secret at his hotel, believing he was a banker. The currency committee is composed of the foremost bankers of the middle West.

FREE HAT WITH EVERY SUIT

A free hat and a 50 per cent. cut in prices are two features of the fifth anniversary sale of F. Gray Company which is being held at their store at the corner of Washington and Hanover streets.

The store, which occupies five entire floors, is stocked to the limit with a most exclusive line of men's clothing. The children have not been forgotten either, and there is a section of the store on the third floor which has been fitted up with special attention to their wants.

For the sale the F. Gray Company has decided to give away a hat with every suit purchase made. In order to obtain this hat it is only necessary to cut the coupon from their ad, and after purchasing a suit of clothes the entire assortment of hats is thrown open to the customer, and he can have the pick of any one of the many styles of hats that the firm has on hand.

HAUNTED IN DREAMS BY VICTIM, TELLS MURDER

YOUTHFUL PRISONER AT PROVIDENCE CONFESSES STRIKING DOWN AGED MAN.

"I was haunted by his ghost and I had to confess. I killed him, though I didn't mean to. Then I went to my room. But I couldn't sleep. I had strange dreams and in them I saw the old man coming toward me. He seemed to be lame and to be coming toward me all the time, as if he wanted to say something to me. I couldn't stand it any longer. I just had to tell about it."—Frank J. Lyons, confessed murderer.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 16.—Quaking with fear as a result of strange visions of his victim in his cell during the night, Frank Joseph Lyons, twenty-two years old, is arraigned today in the Sixth District Court, charged with the murder early Sunday morning of Henry Kelly, seventy years old, in a lonely section of Canal street, this city.

Lyons confesses the crime. With robbery as a motive, he admits knocking the old man down and dropping a heavy stone on his head to hold him down, while he went through his pockets. After the murder, Lyons says, the spirit of his victim haunted him in his room and in his cell and mocked him until he was forced into making a confession.

"I went with the old man," said Lyons, "down to Canal street, and talked with him there for a while. I don't remember what we talked about. I went over with him to the iron wall near the canal. He said something—I don't remember what. It made me mad. I pushed him, and he fell to the street, and then, I struck him while he was down. I wasn't satisfied with that, so I threw a big stone on his head to hold him while I went through his pockets.

"I just dropped the stone on his head and went away. I did not mean to kill him. I had never met the old man until that night, and I can't remember that he did anything to me except to make me mad. I fully understand the meaning of it to me. I suppose that it means I will be electrocuted or hanged. But I can't help it. I simply had to tell."

The prisoner fastened his eyes in the police station on the huge stone that had inflicted Kelly's fatal injuries. It had been brought in by policemen.

Saw Him Laughing in Dream.

"After the row," Lyons continued, "I went to my room on Church street. I couldn't sleep. I couldn't think of anything but the old man. I would have dreams and in them the poor old man would be coming toward me, laughing at me. He seemed to be lame and he moved as though he wanted to say something to me. I was awful."

Lyons said that he was born in Hartford, Ct., and that his father and mother are dead. He was arrested last Summer in Hartford for stealing $30 from a room in a boarding house, and was sentenced to serve two months in the Hartford jail. He was released in July. He then worked in different places and finally drifted to Providence.

Pressed by court officers for further details of the murder, Lyons said that when the first of the strange visions came to him Sunday night while he slept, he could not understand them. He did not know then that Kelly was dead. The spirit of Kelly, he said, haunted him all night. He saw it everywhere in his room, no matter how he turned.

"I couldn't understand it until Monday," he said. "Then I saw in the newspapers that Kelly was dead."

Traced to Lodging House.

The arrest of Lyons was the result of a two-days' search made by Police Inspectors Godfrey and Ahern. They searched about the scene of the murder for clews. They learned that a young man had been seen in the neighborhood about the time the murder was supposed to have been committed, and from a description they procured they traced Lyons to his lodging house.

Later the officers arrested him in a restaurant. Lyons denied any original intention of robbing or murdering the man, but conceived the idea of robbery after he had passed him down, and later the plan of silencing his victim came to his mind, and he brought the big stone into play. He illustrated the height to which he lifted the stone before letting it fall upon the man's face and head, and made the distance about a foot and a half.

CREWS OF BIG FLEET GUESTS OF SAN DIEGO

SAN DIEGO, April 16.—The officers and men of the Atlantic fleet are having a good time today. All the formalities of the welcome are over, and the jackies are wandering about the city. The people of San Diego, as much on holiday as ever, are doing all in their power to furnish entertainment.

A baseball team from the crew of the Ohio and the San Diego nine will meet on the diamond this afternoon. Boat races are being held on the bay. To-night there will be an elaborate display of fireworks, more banqueting and a grand good time. Thousands of visitors bustled about the streetships to-day.

CHILDREN AND WOMEN SLAIN BY JAPANESE

SHANGHAI, April 16.—Advices have been received here of desperate fighting in Korea, the natives carrying on a desperate guerilla warfare against the Japanese. The greatest cruelty is being practiced by the Koreans, all murders being characterized by Oriental ferocity.

The Japanese troops, in retaliation, are showing no mercy to the rebels. In many instances where villages have been stormed, women and children have fallen beside the men before Japanese advances. Most of the southeastern Korean interior is held by Korean rebels.

Nearly all Japanese settlers have been driven from the territory or murdered. Those who remain are in great peril. The coast towns, where Japan's soldiers were regarded as strongest, are also in danger. The uprising has been of gradual growth, and now extends throughout the country.

JAPS QUIT HUB FOR NEW YORK

NEW YORK, April 16.—Fifty-seven Japanese arrived in New York from Boston today on the Fall River Line steamboat Providence on a trip around the world. The party, which includes some of the representative bankers and educators of Yokahoma, as well as three women, took a sight-seeing trip around Manhattan and then departed for Washington, where they will remain for three days as guests of the Japanese Ambassador. They will then return to New York and spend several days in seeing famous buildings and visiting places of interest.

The expedition started from Japan on March 18 and will arrive back at Yokahoma on June 15.

KOSHER FOOD FOR ALL IMMIGRANTS

The Jewish interpreter, Morris L. Silsan, of the Boston Immigration Station, has arranged to furnish Kosher food for all of the Jewish immigrants detained at the station during the Passover. Up to present there are but five detained, but after the arrival of the Cunarder Ivernia tonight this number is expected to be increased ten-fold.

Umpire—Sheridan.

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.

"We want every game in sight," was the command of Manager Jim McGuire to his players this morning when they assembled at the grounds for the usual conference and made preparations for putting the Senators to rout for the second time.

Yesterday's lay-off gave both teams the opportunity to get ready for a fresh start, and the second conflict to-day will have more traces of bitterness on tap.

Every player on the Red Sox knows that the better impression he makes at the start off the stronger his chances are for holding down his job, and they are exerting themselves with perhaps more danger of slipping up from over anxiety to make good.

Manager McGuire called off many preliminations to play a double-header to-day and clean up the postponed contest. "It's too early for rubbing it in that way," said Jim, and Joe Cantillon of the Senators was of the same opinion. Both leaders decided that it would be foolishness to gnash the men so hard at this stage of the season, as the double-header could be played off the next time the Senators came this way just as well as not.

Morgan Down to Pitch.

Cy Morgan was on the card to pitch yesterday when the rain interfered with the proceedings, and will tackle the job this afternoon, which should put the odds in favor of the locals. Tim Wiry one, Fahlenburg, built like a reed, will head them over for the Senators, unless Cantillon decides that Elsie Patten, the vet, should shake up his arm at an early date in the schedule.

The Yannigans will indulge in considerable practice in the morning and afternoon sessions, as a game has been arranged for Saturday with the Lowell team of the New England League in the Spindle City, and Eddie Riley take along ten men to make a clean-up.

The calling off of the second game with the Senators gave Deacon McGuire, the big main spring of the Red Sox, a chance for rubbing and it's nobody's say that his mind was rather free of troubles. What it will be several months from now is another matter, but for the present Jim is basking in the happy moment of the successful turn of fortune in his favor, which was brought about by stowing away the initial game in such a brilliant style.

"We've got a ball team and no mistake," commented the Deacon. "That was evident to the Hub fans, I guess, who saw them perform in that opening game. Say, but that was a swell crowd. Boston is the king town all right for baseball and deserves the best team in the business, and you can bet we'll do my hardest to build up one.

Hitting Will Develop.

"Some said that the boys did not do enough hitting to give the impression that they had it in them. Well, did you notice that the batting all over the country was of the light order. This can be accounted for by the pitchers being in prime form for the start off, while the batters take several weeks of hard campaigning to find their usual strength with the stick.

"Yes, I am satisfied with the team as it stands and played in the first game and intend to keep the same lineup going till there is some good reason for making a change. If the men who played against the Senators in that first game maintain a winning gait there will be no cause to make any shifts. I picked out what looked best to me among the stars we have and was glad to see them make good.

No Players Let Go.

"We will keep all the players we have on hand for the present and give them a thorough trying out, as no chances will be taken of a weak spot at any position.

"That outfield is going to be the fastest in the country, and the final selection has not yet been made up yet. While Carlisle, Unrath and Bonnie Sullivan ready to jump in the others will have to do their best to hang on.

"Of course, it takes time for the new fielders to pick up the batting tendency of other teams, and I've a player like Sullivan, he will know the general direction every major league batter is hitting and play for him accordingly. The new outfielders have this to learn. But it is a heady bunch we have got, and speed will go a long way for the lack of knowledge of what the other teams are going to do will at the last.

"Our pitchers are batting all right. They were a little over anxious in the first inning, but they soon stopped over. Put on the Southern trip the way they collected hits together certainly compared favorably with any team in the League."

BANGOR TRACK LEASED BY LOCAL MEN

BANGOR, Me., April 16.—Maplewood Park has been leased to Messrs. A. E. Trites, Oscar Pickett and James Beatty, all of this city, and it is reported that matinee races will be held each week.

Messrs. Trites and Pickett each have good-sized strings of horses, which will be in training, and the lease of the track was secured that it might be put in repair and kept so. Mr. Trites's pacer, Rudy King (2.04¼), made his appearance at Maine track this year.

It looks as if P. D. McKinnon ought to have a good winner in Matthew Vassar, son of Vassar (2.07), dam Hummingbird (trial of Fernando, 2.16¼, and Lady Isabel, 4, 2.29¾), by Merry Bird (2.16¾, sire).

At the track E. H. Greeley is educating a number of the get of Colombo, and has some excellent young horses, and Ralph Burrill has a promising string that are will work out.

TOM JENKINS HOT AFTER GOTCH NOW

Tom Jenkins, America's ex-champion wrestler, is once again on the warpath. He is after the scalp of Frank Gotch, the recent conqueror of Hackenschmidt, to whom Tom lost his laurels a year ago.

Jenkins defeated Gotch in Madison Square Garden a couple of years ago in the most bitterly fought wrestling contest ever held in this country. Shortly after that Hackenschmidt took the American's measure, and in doing so injured Jenkins's side to such an extent that he was compelled to retire from the game. Jenkins has since fully recovered from his injury that Jenkins took Gotch on in Kansas City last year was plain. Time and again he tried to get Gotch to give him a return match, but without avail. Then Jenkins was appointed wrestling instructor at the Military Academy at West Point, and went there to teach the cadets.

Since Gotch beat the "Russian Lion" Jenkins has been sending a willing ear to the call to battle. When in proper condition he was always Gotch's master, and the work that Tom has been doing at West Point has put him in fine shape. He says that if Gotch is a champion he knows that he is twice one, and that he will not rest until he forces the farmer into a match.

BY BILL ROSS.

NEW YORK, April 16.—The Doves and the Trolley Dodgers play the second game of the first series at Washington Park, Brooklyn, this afternoon and indications point to a big attendance.

The work of the Boston team in the initial contest has caused a good deal of talk both in Manhattan and the borough across East River. When Joe Kelley was congratulated on the work of his men he talked like an old campaigner. The merits of his team did not interest him half as much as it defects.

Joe was pleased with the victory, but not at all elated. He was thinking of the bumps sure to come to any club. It was his first chance to see the Doves in real action. They never would have been recognized as the same lads who arrived on the way north from Augusta to play hush leaguers. They struck a gait suggestive of a cracker-jack team and were not only fast most of the time, but always aggressive. But Joe watched every play with an eye that missed no possibility. He is not going to be satisfied with anything in the way of team work does not touch the top notch of excellence.

"I'm a well player," said Joe, "has not only got to know what he ought to do, and when to do it, but he has got to know how to make the play. The player who knows what he ought to do and can't quite do it is the one who is entrusted and handed in a minor league. Performance is what counts in baseball. A team that has a shade the best of it in its playing gets to the front in the long run. The season is a long one and everything good or bad in a team has got to show before the season is over. The way to get to the top or near it is to get a good start and keep going, going, going.

"But one game is only one out of 154. It is nothing that gives a good line on the standing at the finish. A major league pennant race is a list of a team that brings out everything good and bad in every player. To win you have got to get every man working at his best. Confidence is a grand factor in the fight, but carelessness is a great weakness. No one and no man on it can ever afford to be satisfied with what is doing—no matter how good either is an effort ought to be made all the time to do a little better.

"Luck helps a team at times or works against it, but hard hitting, fast fielding with the ball on the bases and the most effective work you can get out of pitchers has got a chance almost a long ways in finishing first in a championship season. We have got a good team and the longer we play the better we will play. The best thing to do is to cut dope out and play ball."

Dove Veterans Sanguine.

The veterans among the Doves seem to be perfectly sanguine that the club is going to make the kind of a showing that Boston followers expect in carrying its colors. They are all fighters—they act like men who are going to play the string out for all they are worth against any odds and conditions.

"The way to win a ball game," said Frank Bowerman, "is to work to win. Put up a game that will make the goddesses. A team or a player has got to have sand to be a success. The team that has the most pluck battle is the hardest one to beat. The battery is the key to defence but it and all the rest of the nine have also got to be on the aggressive from the first to the last ball pitched. A streak of yellow puts up the round numbers on the score board."

Rain yesterday was a great disappointment to the Doves, who wanted to get another chance at Pat Donovan's men while enthusiasm is running at white heat. President Ebbetts waited until late in the day and before he called the game off it began to drizzle at about noon and rained hard. The ground for ball play seemed hopeless but it was nearly 3 o'clock before the Doves learned that they were out to play.

President Ebbetts said that under no condition would he call a game off before 2:30 p. m. Once upon a time he rendered an early and adverse decision on the subject. Then the weather cleared up. Mr. Ebbetts is now playing a sure thing on rain. At 2:25 Secretary John Ebbetts called him by telephone if there was to be a game. "I'll let you know by 2:30" said Mr. Ebbetts, although rain was then coming down by the gallon.

Sweeney Got Two Singles.

Bill Sweeney hit for two singles in the first game of the season and if he had got away from the plate a little faster on one occasion might have got another safe one.

Bates has the ability to fatten his batting average to a very large degree by giving more attention to bunt hits. But Johnny never goes to line the ball out.

Beaumont has had less practice at the bat than any man on the team. But he is fast getting his eye on the ball.

Jeff Pfeffer's arm is getting better, but he needs a little more time before he can afford to take much of a chance in the box and Brooklyn ground.

Harry Hoffman has left the team and will go to Rochester. He said he was going to his Philadelphia home and not to Providence.

Joe Kelley's outfield stunts this Spring are the envy of many a fielder. Lack of sufficient police lines caused trouble at both the Polo and Brooklyn grounds. Of course the commissioner is not a fan.

Bill Lumley is the idol of his Brooklyn fireside whenever the team is in or near New York.

HARVARD WILL PLAY BOWDOIN GAME TODAY

BATTING ORDER.

HARVARD.	BOWDOIN.
Leonard, 2b.	Lawson, s.s.
Keefe, 2b.	McDuffy, l.f.
Briggs, 1b.	Caldwell, c.f.
Simons, c.	Stanwood, 3b.
Lanigan, l.f.	Files, p.
Kendig, c.f.	Minter, 2b.
Haydock, r.f.	Clifford, 1b.
Curtiss, c.	Harris, r.f.
Brennan, Hicks, p.	Bovet, c.

The game between the Harvard and Bowdoin baseball nines, which was postponed from yesterday afternoon on account of rain, will be played this afternoon at Soldiers Field at 4 o'clock. The Crimson team is very anxious to atone for its defeat of last Saturday and will play for all it is worth from the top of the bat.

The Harvard nine will have to go some this afternoon if they expect to take the Bowdoin team into camp. Bowdoin has six veterans from the '07 team which defeated Harvard 5 to 4.

Files is an exceptionally good pitcher, and although his work this Maine college's boys have already beat Brown 5 to 4 and Princeton in a freezing game 5 to 2. Heyniger, the Tigers' crack twirler, was Files's opponent in the latter game.

Brennan and Hicks are good pitchers, but Harvard should have Hartford in the box with such a pitcher as Files to compete with. The game is scheduled to begin at 4 o'clock.

HARVARD CREW OFF TO RACE THE MIDDIES

The Harvard varsity eight-oared crew leaves on the Federal express to-night for Annapolis, where they will row the middies in a two-mile race next Wednesday. To-day the practice will be devoted entirely to racing starts, a very important feature in a two-mile race. In previous years the varsity and plebe Crimson crew to get a quick start has hurt them in the races they have had with Cornell and Columbia.

Thursday's trial spin was the best went over the mile and seven-eighths course with the Charles at any time and were rolled to raise their stroke from 32 to 37 in order to win out by a few inches or three-quarters of a length. The work of the varsity was poor from the start with a noticeable lunge at the finish and no life in the catch. The pull through was not smooth, and the boat was badly between strokes. On the whole the showing was disappointing.

The crew will be made up as follows: Stroke, Sargent; No. 7, Richardson, No. 6, S. Rawle, No. 5, Ward, No. 4, Hunt; No. 3, Severance; No. 2, Fish; bow, Faulkner. Coxswain, Bigelow.

CHANCE PICKS CUBS TO WIN FLAG AGAIN

Frank Chance, manager of the world's champion Cubs, has made an unqualified statement that the old Chicago National League team will not only win the pennant for the third successive time, but will also capture the world's series games next Fall.

Chance thinks that Pittsburg and Philadelphia are due to finish behind his team, with New York, Brooklyn and Boston showing up as "also good colts." He thinks Cincinnati is destined to a struggle to finish in the first division.

McGraw has made no predictions as yet, but both Roger Bresnahan and Mike Donlin in moments of enthusiasm have stated that the pennant will be brought back to the game's home town. Many baseball experts who have been studying the pennant possibilities of McGraw's team say that unless some quality of pitching appears early at Marlin Springs, Tex., develop unusual ability the New York team will be weak at second base and in the box, inasmuch as McGraw decided some time ago that it depended wholly upon Matthewson, Mcginnity, Taylor, Ames and Wiltse this year.

WON GAME BUT BROKE LEG.

DOVER, N. H., April 16.—Carl E. Rollins, son of Colonel Frank E. Rollins, N. H. N. G., and captain of the Dover High School baseball team, brought in the run that won the opening game of the season for his team against the York (Me.) High School here yesterday, but in sliding home broke his right leg in two places below the knee and was taken from the field unconscious.

SUTTON DEFEATS HOPPE.

AKRON, O., April 16.—George Sutton defeated Willie Hoppe of New York, the 18.2 balk line champion, by a score of 400 to 244, in an 18.2 exhibition game.

NO SOCCER TEAM WILL BE SENT ACROSS

English sportsmen are expressing surprise that one or more Association football teams have not entered the Olympic soccer tournament in England next summer. Association football is evidently come to stay in America, and if the game keeps progressing at the same rate which it is now doing, it may not be long before Americans will be able to place a team on the field able to hold its own with England's best. There were more than 20,000 players taking part in the game in the United States this season, and at least 25 per cent. of them are American citizens, in Philadelphia, New York and this city alone there are several hundred clubs. The Pittsburg, Cleveland, Buffalo, Chicago, Cincinnati, Denver, St. Louis, Detroit, Pittsburg, New Orleans and other cities. On the Pacific coast the game has reached a very high standard, especially in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle, and more than 3,000 players are registered. Austria, Belgium, Bohemia, Denmark, Germany, Hungary, France, Italy, Holland, Switzerland and the Netherlands will all send teams to England next year to contend for the challenge trophy which the English Football Association has donated to the British Olympic Association. Besides the European countries, most of the British colonies, Argentina and other South American countries are almost certain to compete. The contests will be confined to the rules of the English cup ties, and will be played at the Olympia Sports Arena.

TO PLAY FOR HANDBALL TITLE.

A match game of handball for the championship of New England will be played in East Boston's gym Saturday afternoon between Professor Joseph F. Goode of the Municipal gym and John J. Harney, the champ player of the Boston police. They will play for a beautiful silver cup, offered by Dr. Harrison of the Back Bay.

HOL-TAN ENTRY FOR BRIARCLIFF TROPHY RACE HAS ARRIVED

By J. C. KERRISON.

The Hol-Tan entry in the Briarcliff Trophy Race arrived in New York on Sunday in charge of W. H. Hilliard, who will drive it on April 24. Hilliard drove the car from Boston, starting the previous morning at 7 o'clock. He arrived that partly bad roads in about ten hours.

Something of a surprise was experienced by motorists who saw the car. It had been expected that the Hol-Tan entry would be the product of the Moon factory at St. Louis. Instead, it turns out to be constructed by the Stanwood Motor Company of Stoneham, Mass., and is built after designs by Quincy A. Shaw of Boston and very different car from that with which the name of Hol-Tan has been associated since the latter company gave over the importing of an Italian car. The new car is a very neat looking proposition, indeed. It is a 40-h. p. car, having four cylinders cast in pairs, each of which is 4.8 bore by 5.5 stroke. The piston area as figured under the Briarcliff race rules works out to 72.83 cubic inches, in other words it is the smallest piston area of any car in the race with one exception.

The Hol-Tan entry has 103-inch wheelbase, with 56-inch tread in the rear and 34-inch wheels in front. It is a shaft-drive car. The rear axle is full-floating, on the general style of the Hotchkiss. It has a multiple disc clutch with fifty-one steel disks of the Healy-Shaw pattern. It has four speeds forward and reverse, with a selective transmission and direct drive on third speed. The frame is "dropped" over the rear axle, giving low gravity and plenty of clearance.

The engine is of construction much like the Hotchkiss, with ball-bearing crankshaft. The valve and cylinder arrangement is on the design of that used by the Fiat. The carburetter, which is of special design, is situated between the two front and the two rear cylinder pairs. The radiator is cellular and circulation is by gear-driven centrifugal pump. There is no fan back of the radiator, but the fly-wheel includes one. The ignition is by high tension Bosch magneto, the front axle is a replica of the Mercedes axle.

The material said to be used is beyond question the best obtainable. All gears, shafts and working parts, steering knuckles and all drop forgings are from the best imported Krupp steel. Ball-bearings, of which there are thirty-eight on the car, are S. W. F. imported throughout.

M'GOVERN AT BROCKTON.

Arthur McGovern, who was once a catcher on the Boston American staff, will leave to-day for Brockton, where he will play with the local team of the New England League this season. He is in fine trim and expects to play the game of his life this season.

The Life Of A Tire

Depends on the way it is made and the quality of the material from which it is made. Then, too, it depends very largely on how it is cared for. If owners could only be brought to realize what a saving they could effect by putting on now a complete set of new and having the old tires and tubes repaired for "extras" they would not be slow to act.

Hartford Tires

"The tire with the risk and the doubt left out"

Glance at the cut. This shows the ideal tire equipment. It is a Hartford Dunlop Tire on Midgley Universal Rim. The tread is much more resilient than the Clincher, rides easier, is easier on the car and wears longer. With the Midgley Rim a tire may be removed and replaced without effort in a jiffy.

ASK AID IN VAIN SEARCH FOR LOVED ONES LOST DURING CHELSEA FIRE

Hundreds of Refugees Appeal to Boston American Bureau in Hunt for Friends and Relatives.

During the day a stream of sad-eyed, heart-wearied people flowed through the BOSTON AMERICAN'S Information Bureau at the corner of Second street and Broadway, Chelsea.

Vainly seeking a trace of loved ones lost in the mad turmoil that preceded the onrush of the flames on the fatal Sunday, they brought piteous stories of suffering and appeals for help. Already scores of families have been reunited through the efforts of this newspaper, but the list of those for whom information is sought is still very large.

To-day several hundred fire victims, through the columns below, send a message to those from whom they have been separated by the holocaust.

LEADING PLAYERS TO AID MONSTER BENEFIT

STARS FROM ALL THEATRES TO APPEAR AT BOSTON THEATRE PERFORMANCE.

In every theatre in Boston active preparation has begun for the immense benefit to be given at the Boston Theatre Sunday evening, when the entire gross proceeds will be devoted to the Chelsea Relief Fund.

One of the first volunteers, in the longest list that a committee has ever had to deal with in this city, was Mrs. Fiske.

Then came Anna Held and the members of her company. Rose Stahl and her "Chorus Lady" company also gave assurances. "The Man of the Hour" company, at the Tremont Theatre, will also be on hand with one of the strongest features of this play.

Guy Standing of "The Right of Way" company also volunteered, while one of the most enthusiastic was Miss Rosie Lloyd, the English comedienne from the Orpheum Theatre.

The names best known to the theatrical world include Gus Williams, Hap Ward, Harry Volces, William H. Thompson and company, Wilfred Clark and company, Bailey and Austin, Elsie Fay, Chinko, Jennings and Renfrew, Minnie Kaufman, Toby Lyons, Tim McMahon, Dick Lynch, Welch, Mealy and Montrose and a host of others.

BIG HIPPODROME BENEFIT SWELLS THE RELIEF FUND

Hundreds of children had an afternoon full of enjoyment yesterday at the Hippodrome, and the pleasure of all who attended the big show was enhanced by the knowledge that the entire receipts went to the Chelsea fire relief fund.

One of the most notable box parties was that comprising the Mayors of Boston and Chelsea and their friends. George A. Hibbard of the Hub and his private secretary, James White, represented Boston. With Mayor John E. Beck of stricken Chelsea were City Clerk Charles H. Reed and License Commissioner Herbert A. Norton.

The rain, of course, tended to keep away many who had planned to be there. But, while the storm beat down without, the benefit patrons inside the huge auditorium were as gay as could be.

Lively fun started right away with Clowns Steve Mineo, Emil Doliado and Fred Merrill putting on a fake police and fake arrest turn that had everyone guessing for a few minutes.

Then the regular programme was put on with a rush and for two hours and a half everyone had their full of amusing, sensational and interesting acts.

Through the generosity of the officials at City Hall, who contributed very liberally to the benefit fund, a large crowd of children were given admission and reserved seats, and they enjoyed the Hippodrome show immensely. Those to gave for this purpose were:

Aldermen Tinsley, Ballantine, James M. Curley and John E. Baldwin, Assessor Fred E. Bolton, City Treasurer Charles H. Slattery, Building Commissioner John A. Keeney, Clerk of Committees John F. Dyer, Assistant Secretary to the Mayor, William A. Boudrot, City Collector Charles R. Brown, Penal Institutions Commissioner Peter F. Rickner, Superintendent of Lamps Edward H. Wade, City Clerk John D. Fitzgerald, City Registrar Edward W. McGlennen, Election Commissioners David E. Crowley and John M. Manion, Assessor Fred E. Bolton, Mitchell Charles, Jr., and City Council Members Joseph A. Conry, Charles Ryder, Eleazar Brothers, J. Kenniard & H. H. Livermore, the Monorail Pneumatic Company and Waitt & Bond were also contributors to the ticket fund.

ROSIE LLOYD TO AID CHELSEA SUFFERERS BY SELLING SONGS

"I'm actually ashamed of my own self," says Rosie Lloyd.

And it's all because Miss Lloyd has been over to the Chelsea fire ruins.

She came back from there with two feelings uppermost in her mind. One was a resolve that never, no never again, would she complain about anything. The other was that she must straightway do something for the Chelsea victims.

She is making good on the second sentiment to-day and to-morrow by selling sheet music at public sale for the benefit of the sufferers. She will sell the song she sings at the Orpheum, where she is appearing this week. The particular song she has selected is "When It's Moonlight on the Prairie," one of the best of her lyric hits.

These sales will take place from 12 to 1 this noon, and the same time to-morrow noon, at the music counter in Houghton & Dutton's. Every penny Miss Lloyd takes in will be for the Chelsea victims.

So, if you want to buy sheet music, get a good look at Rosie Lloyd as she is in everyday life and aid the Chelsea sufferers at one fell swoop, go to Houghton & Dutton's to-day or to-morrow and buy a copy of her charity music.

PORTER FOUND DEAD AT STORE

Fred H. Nolan, thirty years old, a porter for William Ware & Co., at No. 69 Summer street, was found dead this morning seated in a chair at the firm's office by John Grey the manager.

It is thought that Nolan remained in the office over night and was stricken with heart failure, as a letter which had been given him to mail last night was found beside the body. Nolan lived at No. 80 Alexander street, Dorchester.

EASTER BARGAINS AT O'CALLAGHAN'S STORE

Women like a new store and women like Easter shopping, too, a fetching combination that is found this week at the O'Callaghan Company's store in the Schwartz building, Nos. 484-486 Washington street. The New England public is quick to appreciate values rightly, as shown by the quick trade that has followed the opening of this store in its present location. The five floors are filled with newest styles in suits, skirts, dresses, waists, raincoats and women's garments in general. The stock was selected with unusual care, with a view to providing the Easter trade with wide choice of styles and materials. The result is shown in the constant stream of customers and the fact that almost without exception the woman who comes to inspect stays to purchase.

PROVIDE RELIEF TO HORSE OWNERS

The Boston Work-Horse Parade Association has found many poor horse owners in the city of Chelsea who need hay and grain for their horses, and harness and wagons. The association will distribute all such articles that are given to them for its purpose. The association agent, M. B. Connolly, may be addressed at No. 15 Beacon street, or care of John F. Moors, relief agent, Chelsea.

As pastor of St. Rose's Roman Catholic Church I wish to give you some authentic information of our condition, while the reporters have not been able to get.

Archbishop O'Connell is pained in grief over the suffering of our people, and is actively engaged in bringing relief to them. He has appealed to all the parishes of the diocese to come to the aid of the afflicted.

The parish is fully covered by insurance, and has no need of assistance and has a glorious future before it. We have no need to think of that now. Provision will be made for masses and everything of that kind.

What we are wholly intent on now is the relief of the poor. We have three bureaus of supplies open day and night, and all may come for relief. All who are in the city, whether of our faith or not, will be gladly welcomed. We will supply them with food and clothing and engage furnished tenements in Boston and elsewhere. We beg Chelsea people who have left the city and are temporarily with friends, and who cannot stay long where they are, to come and let us provide for them.

Our depots are at the Spencer Avenue Catholic School, at the old parochial residence, Broadway and Crescent avenue, and at the corner of Williams and Broadway. The Particular Council, St. Vincent de Paul, the local council of the Knights of Columbus, are all engaged in the work.

The priests have given up nearly all other work, and are devoting their time to aiding the suffering. All that is contributed will go to the most worthy cases. It is their aim to aid not only for the moment, but provide for later on when people will be able to be on their feet again. Efforts will be made to find employment for those who are thrown out of work.

Charity will mean big relief to many who are suffering, and saddened hearts will realize that God has great good in store for them.

THOMAS F. CUSACK,
Rector St. Rose's Church, Chelsea.

FIGHTS DOTY IN WHIRLWIND AUTO CAMPAIGN

Touring the Fourth Congressional District in a forty-mile-an-hour automobile, ex-Mayor Walter H. Morse of Marlboro is bent upon being a Taft delegate to Chicago, even if to become so he must defeat George H. Doty, chairman of the Republican State Committee. The Fourth District convention, to be held in Ayer, Saturday afternoon, promises to be the most interesting as well as the most stubbornly contested of all the Republican district conventions. Three Taft supporters are engaged in a struggle for the two places as delegates, Lewis E. Carlton of Gardner, president of several manufacturing companies, being engaged in the contest for delegate against both Colonel Doty and ex-Mayor Morse.

The refusal of Colonel Doty until late last week to come out squarely in a declaration for Taft, is responsible for the opposition now developing against him in the Fourth District. Both Morse and Carlton are strong Taft supporters.

TWO SHOT, TEN HURT IN CAR STRIKE RIOT

BULLETS FLY AS BREAKERS TRY TO RUN TROLLEY IN CHESTER.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—Two strike-breakers were shot to-day at Chester, Pa., in the fiercest riot that has marked the strike of the employees of the Chester Traction Company. Three others are in the hospital badly bruised and beaten.

A William Borgmann, who acted as motorman when car No. 1 left the barns at 5 o'clock this morning, was shot in the foot, while a trevelyer bullet lodged in the leg of William Griesmyer, chief agent of the company, who was attacked while leading a squad of forty strike-breakers.

Rioting was spasmodic from midnight on, and began with an attack on the Lafayette Hotel, where the hooted strike-breakers have been housed. The local police are powerless, and the militiamen may be called out.

Breakers in Fight.

An attempt to lead forty strike-breakers from the Lafayette at Fourth and Penn streets to the car barns at Thirteenth and Edgmont streets through back streets about 4 o'clock was soon discovered by the watchful strikers' sympathizers, and in a desperate hand to hand battle the imported workers were routed and driven, bruised and bleeding to shelter in the car barns.

The rout of the strike-breakers angered the Traction Company officials and preparations were made to run a car at 5 o'clock, the hour when the regular city schedule began on the streets of Chester. It came out promptly on the hour, with Borgmann as motorman and an imported strike-breaker as conductor. Borgmann is the man who took out the first car in the San Francisco street car strike.

Bricks, stones and pieces of lead pipe were thrown from every side, and firing began. It was barely light, and the bullets flew wildly. How many shots were fired no one knows, but it sounded like a volley of musketry. Sleeves were pierced, hat brims shot off, and there were remarkable escapes by the dozen. Men on both sides of the street fired at the car and narrowly missed each other.

Police Powerless.

A strong detachment of police succeeded in driving the car back.

Mayor Johnson quickly reached the scene and his condemnation of the Traction Company officials for attempting to start car service without his permission was scathing.

It is regarded as out of the question to maintain order. Chief of Police Penning-ton admits that his men cannot cope with the situation.

President Rigg telepaoned to Captain John C. Groome, commander of the State Constabulary, at his home in Rosemont, to send the State Constabulary, but was told that this could not be done except by an official written request.

THROW OUT M'CARREN; DEMOCRATS IN RIOT

NEW YORK, April 16.—Ten undertakers who have charge of the Democratic party to-day and who are about to embalm of the corpse had been prepare the coffin also, because deeply will be buried the Democratic party.

"If this is the beginning of your campaign for the mayoralty, let me tell you that there isn't a single one among you that will ever see a Democratic Mayor again."

Looking straight at Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, Senator Patrick H. McCarren, last night, made this dramatic prediction as he left the despairing hope against being thrown out of the Democratic State Convention.

Half an hour later, McCarren was read out of the Democratic party by a vote of 825 to 80, and a gaping wound was opened in the ranks of the Democracy that extends clear from New York to Buffalo.

Just before midnight the convention became the scene of a demonstration positively riotous. All night there had been an uproar, but when Chairman Carmody read off the list of new State committeemen half the up-state delegates in the hall jumped to their feet, yelling at the top of their lungs.

Thirty or forty angry men in the middle aisle bolted down through the surging mass for the stage. Shouting out that the leaders had tricked them, they leaped for the platform, still demanding to be heard. In the struggle that followed, half a dozen men thrust themselves into the chairman's place and pushed his desk bodily off the rostrum.

Sergeant-at-Arms Watson tried to stem the tide and push them back, but one husky delegate caught him by the shoulders with one hand and Watson fell off the stage on top of the overturned desk in the pit below.

The riot lasted half an hour. The angry protestants declared that the bosses of the convention were stealing committeemen and deliberately overruling the delegates' votes.

At the height of the tumult Chairman Carmody shouted out that there had been a resolution passed giving the convention power to select the State Committeemen by general vote. A dozen men cried out, "Liar!" and were rushed again for the stage when police reserves interfered and dragged them back to their seats.

Some Women Look Sloppy

Beauty and Grace Disappear with the Growth of Fat.

There is nothing so repulsive in a woman's appearance as an over-development or extreme growth of fat in any part of the body. A woman's form is essentially one of grace; the loss of beauty vanish as fat accumulates, and instead of beauty we see bulk, and what was once fair becomes a fright.

People just can't help laughing at a heavy mother or a stout maiden aunt; one is reminded be somebody's sweetheart trying to side-wheel around, with a double chin acting as a kind, of pilot. It is an incontestable fact, a woman's natural fig, with all due respect to our women, we still must say that there are hundreds of them who look decidedly "sloppy" because of even a slight growth of fat which is first noticeable as a rule in the appearance of a double chin, coming in a waist of thick diameter, and a bust with that——

You can stop being a side-show, and be instead your normal self, of perfect form and natural weight, and, moreover, be stronger and in better health than you ever were before in your life, and stop ridicule, by taking Rengo.

There is nothing "just as good" as Rengo. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per full-sized box, or by mail prepaid, by The Rengo Co., 5212 Rengo Bldg., Detroit, Mich. The company will gladly send you a trial package free by mail, if you write them direct to Detroit; no free packages at drug stores.

For sale in Boston by Jaynes Drug Co., five stores; Henry Siegel Co., Washington and Essex sts.

DELAY MULLINS INQUEST AGAIN

Again the adjourned session of the inquest to inquire into the death of Annie Mullins has been continued by District Attorney John J. Higgins of Middlesex County, so that Chief Urquhart of Arlington and State Officer Byrnes, who have been to St. John's, may have time to get back and give a report of their discoveries in Newfoundland.

It is anticipated that a new witness will appear when the next session of the inquest is held, and this witness is looked to for a few revelations.

Benedict Shanahan, the fisherman acquaintance of the dead girl, is expected to return to this city from the Grand Banks soon in the schooner Catherine and Ellen.

His schooner is overdue, and it is reported in some quarters that she was driven into a Nova Scotia port by a storm a few days ago.

Shun Men Who Are Lacking in Respect

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A FEW days ago I had luncheon with a woman friend at one of our most famous and fashionable restaurants.

Seated at a table very near us were two middle-aged men.

One of them is noted for being a leader in society and the most fashionably dressed man in the city.

These two men were not discreet neighbors. They audibly criticised women in the room, and several terms used in their conversation were extremely offensive to the ears of any modest, well-bred woman. Between times they found fault with the waiter.

They talked of nothing but women and dress and things to eat.

Think of it! These two men, nearing old age, and not a serious, intelligent thought in their heads.

Make a Great Mistake

PROBABLY the women with whom these men associate allow them to repeat jokes and stories that are not nice, and the men, not being very keen judges of character, imagine that all women are like that sort of thing.

They are vastly mistaken if they think so, for there is not one woman in ten but loathes anything touching on vulgarity or impurity.

Respect and gentleness are what women wish from men.

When a man treats you roughly or unchivalrously, you may be sure of two things—he does not respect you, and he is not a gentleman.

The men who talked in the restaurant would be quite surprised if any one told them that they were ungentlemanly and lacking in courtesy to women.

But I am very sure that no man having an innate respect for women would have talked as they did.

One of these has a sweet-looking wife, and I wonder if she is forced to listen to coarse jests.

Snub Man That Offends

NEVER countenance for one moment a story that offends your modesty. Sometimes a girl laughs at such a story through ignorance of the point or through sheer nervousness.

Don't do that. Snub the man instantly and decidedly, and if he repeats the offense drop him from your acquaintanceship.

Remember, always, that the sweetest, best thing about a woman is her purity and modesty.

It is those qualities that give her her strongest influence over men, for men worship goodness in women.

The man who does not recognize and admire these qualities in a woman is not worthy the name of man; and, if you know say such, have nothing to do with them.

"Too Many Cooks Spoil the Broth"--By Nell Brinkley

"And then, too, Angelfaces, only think! With so many Billiams, all much fine and all different—you can't decide which one you want"

A WORD ON SLEEVES

SPRING has shown no change in point of style. Sleeves will remain short for all dressy gowns, while only the severest of tailored costumes have long sleeves. It is no exaggeration to say that the elbow length is even more in evidence than ever. Of course the fact cannot be forgotten that there are many sleeves with many names, and the story is toward the half sleeve, and the three-quarter length of semi-dressy suits usually extends below the elbow.

"TOO many cooks spoil the broth." And too many Billys times spoil the Betty!

Or even, Angelface, TWO BILLYS, for every Betty ought to have two Billys to teach her to conjugate "Ame"—a Billy who would teach her much of strength and charity and broadmindedness, who would learn tenderness and fineness of grain from her; a Billy to see the wonder of the world with, and to talk of it with; to chatter

Because all that row of fifteen Billys, all firing blarney and sweet things and candy kisses and deep-breathed purple violets and jacquenimot roses at her—make of her a little boast.

It makes her haughty and selfish and makes her love Bettina Angleface more than any other little person in the world. It makes her grow tired of many things she would have cared for her blue eyes and—and there are fifteen knots to her sky-blue bean string and a Billy at every knot and another on the very tail and—why, then it's bad and fierce for Bettina.

pretty things, nor lovemaking in the moonlight.

Pooh! She gets lovemaking everywhere, under the sun and stars, and on water and on land, and all kinds of ways and coming to her in all kinds of voices. And love grows old and commonplace to her and a thing to be patted and teased and lost and not cried over.

Billys like Bettys with dreams behind their eyes and romances still sitting and a-purring there—oh, Betty Angelface—do feed it, nutted ones that can still be pretty things, nor lovemaking in the moonlight.

The Manicure Lady Has a New Hat; a 'Dream'

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"I GOT a new Easter hat already ordered," announced the Manicure Lady. "It's going to be delivered at the house Saturday morning, and, say, George, it's a dream.

"I hate to say much about my taste, but I picked out the lid myself. It's one of them wide sailors, the widest kind they can pack into a store. Wilfred says it is bounded on the east by the Orient and on the west by California's golden strand.

"Being just a simple girl with quiet ideas, I ain't ordered many feathers for the top; only a few rooster plumes, three peacock feathers and the wings and stinger of a New Jersey mosquito for the finishing touch.

"I suppose them Audubon Society people will look at me and say mean things, but I don't care. It's a grand hat anywhere except in a high wind.

"I hate 'em when they grow too wide," said the Head Barber. "It ain't so bad to see a beautiful girl strolling down Fifth avenue with one of them extension lids on, but when it comes to the rush hour at the Brooklyn Bridge they tickle the men's faces.

"Nothing makes a man feel worse, when he is trying to ram his way through a crowd of fellers at 6 p. m., than to strike a bunch of bats that look like an umbrella worn by the Queen of the Jolly Isles. My wife nearly ordered one.

"They are very classy," said the Manicure Lady. "You should have let your wife get one. Why don't you tell her so when you go home to-night?"

Needs Closet Space

"I DON'T had to tell her that. I wouldn't go home," said the Head Barber. "We ain't got much of a flat, and the rooms is so small there ain't much closet space, and I'll ask to be shot for my Sunday pair of pants, but when they get crowded out by one hat I can't stand the pressure, and that's all there is to it.

"My wife has one good extra lid now, and when it is put side by side with the one that she uses to go marketing, the two of them are about half as big as the sailor thing she picked out. Nothing doing."

The Manicure Lady shrugged her shoulders disdainfully. "You men is mostly alike," she declared. "All you think about is yourselves. You can never know the joy that it brings to a woman's heart to know that her loving husband wan't her to have a street that his money can buy for her, whether it is hats or dresses or automobiles.

"Women appreciates them little tender remembrances, George, not so much for what they cost as for how much more they cost than the things their lady friends get from their husbands."

Handing It Out

"I RECKON you're right on that part of it," admitted the Head Barber. "I know my wife has a particular friend that away a good shopping with her. It's great the way they hand out the talk to each other.

"You ought to see the perfectly lovely Irish lace princess gown that Gerty bought for me last week," my wife tells her friend. "Fresh? You're going to lay off me from next week," my wife's friend comes back. "And by the way, Bill, how is the wife. I don't understand how a barber can afford to buy Irish lace, but I'm sure it is Irish lace, and how do you know it is going to be for a princess dress?

"You fish is Irish lace," says my wife, "and I forgot to tell you, Georgs is going to get me a beautiful emerald brooch with twelve diamonds on the outside, to wear with my new gown.

"How perfectly sweet," says my wife's friend, "but do you think emeralds will match your complexion, dear? Perhaps it's a case of Green and Yellow, Catch a Fellow," says my wife's friend.

"And that's the way they go on, always handing it to each other, but always calling each other 'dearest.'

Not So With Men

"MEN ain't never that way," continued the Head Barber. "Imagine a Gray or Griffith going up to some umpire when he has made a bad decision against the home team and saying, 'Dearest, I'm sure you are a perfectly lovely umpire, but don't you think you ought to look after your health and not get so excited and be sweeping out a schoolhouse?'

"Men never hand out the salve," said the Head Barber. "They are always on the job with each other's."

"How do you know?" challenged the Manicure Lady. "You're a barber, and you don't get a chance to study men like some folks do."

"I get a lot of 'em," said the Head Barber. "And they're mostly all alike when you get down under the skin."

He Wouldn't Believe a Woman Under Oath

By Aricita B. Canfield

WOULD you believe it that men could be so vindictive? Wouldn't it make your blood boil and itch to get hold of the man who dares to say that he wouldn't believe any woman under oath?

And he says this deliberately, after having had experience. Think of it!

Wouldn't it be a splendid state of affairs if no one would believe a man under oath after the experience which comes to most mortals?

Whoever heard of Hubby telling the truth when he came home at fifteen p. m.? Did you ever know the truth to be floating about in the vicinity of a horse trade?

What real estate man washes his roles in the stream of truthfulness? What merchant ever told the exact truth about his and nothing but the truth about his wares?

Wouldn't you fall dead off if you found an author or a doctor or a lawyer or a—er, or even a minister, who did not rely on imagination for much of his text?

Shows How Silly It Is

And yet, whoever heard of any one who objected to serving on jury duty because the doubt of man's truthfulness would not allow fair judgment to obtain?

This goes to show how silly it is to pass judgment upon a whole class or all of one sex. It should be the individual character that counts, and it is the individual that counts with all who have not allowed some personal experience to warp their views.

Following the idea advanced by those pessimists, it would be safe to say that all men cowards because one of their sex shot another in the back, or we ought to kill off all the cats regardless of their mice-exterminating qualities just because one poor, little, ignorant kitten scratched the baby.

What's the Difference?

And, moreover, we might just as sensibly condemn all men as prejudiced because these men in question have declared that all women are liars.

Furthermore, it would be as just to say that because these men have exhibited bad judgment in this one direction they are not capable of judging correctly anything else. This would undoubtedly be a very bad course of reasoning, for one of them at least is probably an excellent judge of meat, and could be relied upon to give you exactly the cut and weight.

These things and many others present themselves to my mind whenever I hear the discussion of women's rights. I wonder if women were to serve on the jury if they would present for the inscribing of the evidence a mind tabled less scarred by prejudice and marred by self-interest than do men.

Room for Thought

I do not think that women are anxious however, to soil their garments with political mud, but I can't help wondering sometimes whether or not they could make things worse than they are under the management of King Man.

I do not know, and neither does anybody else, for that matter, whether or not things would be worse or better under the supervision of women, but when I hear of the many laws that are forcibly overlooked and I know that any man of his kind can go to the polls and help to dictate the laws under which I shall abide, I think things sorely need hard.

I wonder if women could make conditions much worse if they had the chance? It surely is a subject upon which there is much room for thought.

Boston American's Daily Short Story

The Ladybird

By Sylvester Whitney

IT was all so absurdly trivial. In fact, she had almost forgotten what it was about. They had quarrelled before lots of times and over much more serious matters, but they had made it up again directly afterward—until now.

Now she came to think of it, it was always she who had begun the contrite and he who had begun the making up. And quite right, too, she said to herself. When he proposed to her she had told her that he worshipped her, that he was her slave till death, that, for her sake, he was ready to go through fire and water. She had only to command and he would obey.

Very well, then; she had taken him at his word. She had commanded and he had obeyed—until now.

It wouldn't order George about quite so much, if I were you, smile," her sister had said to her the other day.

"What do you mean?" she asked in amazement.

"Well, I don't exactly know how to explain it," said Emily. "You know you are quite a pleasant, easy-going person generally speaking, but with George you are a perfect tyrant. I sometimes wonder how he stands it."

"You don't understand," replied Kate, loftily. "When a man is in love with his wife it is the greatest pleasure and privilege in the world for him to do her bidding."

"Even if it makes him look like a fool?" asked Emily, whereupon Kate presented a dignified silence.

Yet, somehow, Emily's words rankled. She thought of George as she stole into the garden, where George had taken wife after dinner. She knew where to find him. He was sitting in his favorite place under the old apple tree at the back of the lawn, unconscious of her presence. Noiselessly she stole up behind him, as she moodily puffed his pipe.

"For Her Sake"

A ladybird had dropped from some overhanging bough and was crawling slowly up his back. One of his coattails.

Had she really made George look like a fool? And did he mind looking a fool—for her sake? Was a real husband should shrink from nothing, not even ridicule, incurred in his wife's service.

Suddenly she stared at the ladybird as it made its slow, laborious journey across George's coat.

After all, perhaps, she had expected him to do a little bit of fetching and carrying, and all that sort of thing.

Of course, a man would call on women. That was perfectly right and proper, but—there was a horrible feeling that was just beginning to realize itself. Was that the reason why he had not been as eager as usual to catch up their last little squabble?

Now she came to think of it, she remembered how the squabble had originated.

She had asked him to get a certain back copy of a fashion paper. The office of the paper was on Tulou Square and George's office was in Eighteenth street, so he would have been the easiest thing in the world for him to get that paper for her, but he had simply forgotten all about it. He had had a lot of business troubles that day. He was very sorry and would be sure to remember it to-morrow.

Now she had particularly wanted that paper that very day, but what had upset her most was not so much the want of the paper as the fact that he should have forgotten to fulfill a wish of hers. She had told him so, and that was how the squabble had started.

The ladybird had by this time reached the rim of George's coat collar.

Well, certainly, he had been looking rather worried of late. Perhaps it was a little unfair to expect him to devote his every thought to her and her little wishes.

She began to remember a hundred petty tyrannies she had exercised and to which he had submitted patiently. The office was the tyrannical sort of them, but quite unnecessary, too.

She remembered having read somewhere once that the true secret of married happiness was the principle of "give and take." The woman as well as the man must be prepared to give and take. Up to the present he had done all the giving, she all the taking.

"Tyrannies!"

How blind, how selfish she had been! She saw it all now. Surely the woman who loves her husband should be as ready to serve as to be served. There could be no question of commanding or obeying on either side.

The ladybird was balancing itself in a reckless manner on the edge of George's white collar. If he moved his head ever so slightly the tiny thing would inevitably be crushed.

In the midst of her remorse she was seized with a sudden solicitude for the lady-bird.

Stooping up behind George, she flicked it dexterously from his collar.

He felt the gentle touch and turned his head in surprise.

The next moment a pair of soft arms were flung about his neck, a hot cheek laid caressingly against his own.

"George, I want to make up," she whispered, "and—there is such a lot I want to tell you."

When she had said it, with her pretty head very close to his, he turned to her with a glad smile.

"I am the proudest, happiest man in the world to-day," he said, "and I shall be until this moment what a sensible little wife you are!" Then, with a little fib, "and, being," he added, hastily, "that I ever regretted the quarrel, it was when I made you my wife. There is nothing I would not do for you, dear, if you will only let me. I found that my love was in danger of spoiling me, and I was going to resent that."

"The horrible tyrannies I practiced upon you," he interrupted, quickly. "George, what a selfish little wretch I have been!"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A QUESTION OF LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going out to different places of amusement with a young man for the last six months. I like him very much, but do you think the difference in our ages is too great? He is thirty-two years old, and I am eighteen. My folks all like him and he has asked me to become engaged, and to be willing to wait until I am twenty. I do not know what to do, as my girl friends always tell me he is much too old for me.

R. S. V. P.

THE difference is not too great if you love him, as he is still a young man. If you really care for him, and your parents approve, I would advise you to marry him

Fat Is an Offense.

"The female form being capable of expressing a supreme degree of grace, should be an inspiration in our daily lives and lead up to higher ideals of living," says the art lecturer. "Therefore the fat woman is an enemy to the artistic spirit, for she is entirely too heavy for any wings of fancy to raise.

"I can't understand how any woman will reduce if she don't like it. It so easy to reduce one's flesh. In the Latin quarter of Paris there is a great deal of it. Although the art models take things easy, sit around a great deal and eat what whatever they please, yet they keep their flesh firm and their figures beautiful. You have a simple plan to reducer that takes the place of starving and gymnastics. It is one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of this simple receipt: ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ ounces Syrup Simplex. That's all. Why don't fat, pudgy American women try that? It's harmless—nay, very good for them—and will, I understand, take off as much as a pound of fat a day. Any one with a little small change and a drug store handy can have a decent figure." Marmola Co., Detroit, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW IN BEAD BAGS

THE best jewelry shops are showing bead bags in solid colors fitted with plain gold rims and handles, instead of the rococo silver ones sparkling with jewels, with which many women had genuine old bead-worked bags mounted rather on account of their fondness for such ornamentation than for its appropriateness.

The new bead bags come in oblong and square shapes, and they are moderately deep. On the bottom in the twisted, even bead fringe, which is the familiar finish for them.

Turquoise blue, garnet, coral, tan, mauve and gray bags are lovely, and if they match the costume they give it a smart finish.

The fringe is made of the same beads.

Another noticeable departure from the fashion established a century ago is in the quality of the beads. Those used for the new bags are sometimes opaque and sometimes. The garnet beads have the old-time sparkle, one to the way they are cut, while the turquoise ones possess the look of the real jewel.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

FILENE'S WILL OFFER about fifty pairs of their regularly two-clasp kid gloves to-morrow for 55 cents a pair. MANY TRAINERS ARRIVING AT NARRAGANSETT PARK

PROVIDENCE, April 16.—There are three stables at present located at Narragansett Park, and several more are expected soon for training purposes. Fred Clarke has Grattan Boy, Jr., Bussey Boy, Kaffir Boy, Burma Girl (2:16¼), Sarah Ann Patch, Betty Hamlin, and a runner.

Charlie Jones has wintered a big string, part of the time having as many as twenty-five head. Some of those in his barn are Kremelia (2:18½), owned by Tom Fay, and mraked in the Provinces last year; the stallion Axos (3) (2:24¾); Bingal by Bingara, and the Dare Devil colt Archangel, three-year-olds, four-year-old Sual by Suffragist, all owned by A. S. Hawes of Riverside; a black yearling colt called Rambler, by Directum Miller and out of Island Maid, property of G. H. Willey; a colt by Dreamer, out of Emily (2:11), owned by Mr. Fay; a green pacer owned by Mr. McGregor of this city and purchased from A. H. Merrill and credited with a trial of 2:12; trotter General Guy, by Nutwood, owned by William Sheldon (Chantilly is the dam of Cascade, 2:14¼, and Chanty, 2:13¼); trotter George Mack, owned by Frank McKenna and John Cavanaugh; a four-year-old trotter by Handspring, owned by John Cavanaugh; chestnut mare Pencilla by Debut (2:15¼) and out of Ella Nutwood, owned by Secretary Al Moone.

John Page, Jr.'s, string is headed by T. F. Toomey's Young Chimes, 2:11¾, a pacer which has had two very successful seasons on the half-mile rings and may be raced in the Grand Circuit this year. Young Chimes got very rugged during the Winter and looks good for a mark better than 2:10 this year. Page also has Aizymont, 2:14¾, who will be raced on the pace this year, John Orr's Directal, William Cornhill's Harry Saxton, and a trotter owned by Mr. Watson of Pawtuxet.

Lyman Hammond has applied for six stalls for the Pomroy horses and Ed Gillies of Attleboro for twenty stalls. It is understood that C. W. Lasell of Whitinsville will bring his Grand Circuit string to Narragansett Park when he leaves Oakhurst Farm. He gave Claty Latis, 2:08¼, her keying up miles at Narragansett Park last year.

The chestnut mare Lady Vand has been sold by Mr. Pomeroy to L. S. Grant, the Empire street stablekeeper. In addition "Grantie" has the black mare Sensen, by Bingen, out of an Arion dam.

G. H. Willey, who for several years owned Phebon W., 2:08¾, and now owns the chestnut pacer Lord Dillon, is at a New York hospital rallying from a facial operation.

JACK "TWIN" TRAINING FOR KETCHELL

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16.—Two of the most prominent of the lightweight division of boxers will arrive in this city within the week.

"Boer" Unholz, who is matched to fight Battling Nelson forty-five rounds at the Mission street arena, left Davenport, Ia., yesterday, and will go into training as soon as he arrives. Joe Gans, the champion, who has been signed up by his manager to fight before Jack Gleason's club on May 15, will leave Baltimore to-morrow.

Gans's opponent has not yet been selected, and Gleason is communicating with a number of fighters in an endeavor to get someone who will make a good battle with the champion. Freddie Walsh, Jack Blackburn and Jimmy Gardner are among the names mentioned, but Gleason has no information to give out as yet.

It is rumored that Gleason and Ben Selig, manager of Gans, will sue John T. Clark for the amount of Nelson's forfeit, posted when the Battler signed articles to fight Gans, and which he subsequently called off. Clark was the stakeholder and holds Nelson's check for the amount. The check is drawn on a bank in Hegewisch and might not do either Gleason or Selig much good even if they had it.

Jack (Twin) Sullivan is working regularly at Shaunon's for his battle with Stanley Ketchell, which is scheduled for Coffroth's arena on May 9. Ketchell will start work on Saturday, taking up his quarters at Millets, where he has trained for all his fights here.

MAPPED OUT BIG SEASON OF RACING

NEW BEDFORD, April 16.—At a meeting of the New Bedford Driving Club arrangements were made for the first meet of the year on April 20. The club has joined the National Trotting Association and is in a flourishing condition. New members are constantly being added to the membership list, and it certainly looks bright for a fine season of sport. Enthusiasm runs high and it seems as if there were more actively interested than ever before.

It was decided that all the contests of the year shall be half-mile heats, two-in-three, and that a set of judges and a starter be elected to act for the season. With this arrangement and the fact that the races will be under association rules there ought to be some good clean-cut racing at the park.

There will be five events April 20, and judging by the entries there look to be some very evenly-matched horses that will be brought together.

For the last month some of the members have been looking for matinee talent and at least five new ones will be seen at the park this year. F. N. Carleton, who owned Edgar M. (2:20¼) last year, is seen with a new one which is called George Wilton.

Mr. Carleton has not much to say as yet, but according to the entries for the 20th the track committee thinks well of this one, as they have put him in with such tried matineers as Checkers (2:18½), Nemasket (2:21¼), Dan Dee (2:18¾), Jack Dawson (2:16¾), etc.

GREAT SPRINT BIKE BATTLE

Major Taylor will have his last chance on Saturday night to make good for his defeat at the hands of Jimmy Moran, as the milkman has consented to another match and the pair will have it out again on the Park Square indoor track. It will be a race of wits as well as speed and gameness, as both are the headiest riders in the game and those who saw the last duel between them will never forget it, and know what to expect when they come together again.

It looks as if Moran was up against it riding two sprint races at the half and mile again with the Major, but he worsted him once and his chances are just as good for repeating. In the mile pursuit race Moran will be better off, as this kind of racing is his long suit.

If Moran can defeat the colored wonder again his name is made as a sprint rider, and Taylor's reputation will be gone. Joe Fogler is back for the professional sprint events and he will make it interesting for the fields.

CLASSY BOUT FOR THE A. A. A.

The members of the Armory A. A. appreciate the fact that a classy match will be served up for them when Honey Mellody and Harry Lewis face each other in the ring next Tuesday night. The records of both men are sufficient guarantee that the mill will furnish the greatest fistic fireworks that have been seen in the club arena, and there will be few absentees when it comes off.

Mellody is out to prove to his friends and non-friends that he is far from being down and out as a fighter, and his willingness to meet such a star performer as Lewis shows his sincerity in the matter. Lewis is about the hardest proposition in the welterweight ranks and the club could not have picked out a more stubborn opponent.

Mellody never disappointed a Hub crowd of fans yet when he battled in the local rings, and it is but natural that his popularity is so widespread and his recent encounter with Unk Russell, the toughest boy in his class in Quaker town, goes to show that Honey is still a decided factor in the ring and his champ title is genuine.

145 IN MARATHON RACE.

Two additional entries have arrived for the B. A. A. Marathon, bringing the total to 145. Daniel W. Driscoll of North Andover and Thomas J. Grant of the Trinity Club, Brooklyn, have decided to have a try at the twenty-five-mile course.

LUNDIN DEFEATS OLSEN.

Olsen, the Western wrestler, was defeated last night at the Columbia Theatre by Lundin, the big Swede, in two straight falls, losing the first in 17m. and the second in 16m. 30s.

FAST HORSES AT ATTLEBORO

ATTLEBORO, April 16.—Plans have been completed for the big matinee on the speedway next Monday afternoon. There will be a number of good races during which a concert will be furnished by the Attleboro band. There will be six events of evenly matched horses and the committee has arranged for a gentleman's driving class. A mule race will be one of the features of the afternoon. The entries are as follows:

Class A, free-for-all trot; entries open. Class B, pacing, Bowen & Ashley's Ona line, Thompson's Robert B., Vance's Prince Oakley, Bolton's Fanny B. Class C, trotting, Middleton's Tom Drew, Jones's Rideon, Manchester's Catherine C. Class D, trotting, Tappan's Bisten, Simpson's Baron Victor, Sargent's Mapleton, Griffin's Molly. Class E, pacing, Tuell's Grey Jim, Hallett's Tony G, White's Grace P., Burnett's Thelma. Class F, trotting, Tappan's Woodford Bell, Sargent's Beck Sargent, McGrath's Cardenas, Brown's Frank Petral. Class Z, Young's "Mule Tom," and Pimer's "Mule Jerry."

The exhibition of gentlemen's driving horses will take place at 4 o'clock. If stormy the meet will be held the following Saturday.

TAILORS' CLEARING HOUSE.

HOW AND WHERE WE GET OUR MERCHANT TAILORS UNCALLED FOR GARMENTS.

Tailors who make garments for the wealthy frequently have them left on their hands. Fastidious patrons, disappointed with the cloth after the garments are made up, refuse to accept them. Others order and fail to call. No wise tailor will try to force on one patron the garments another refused to accept. To do so, would be spoiling a made-to-order customer. Desiring to turn these uncalled for garments into quick cash, the tailors sell them to us at such low figures that we are able to offer at $15, $18, $20, $25, and $30 and $35, suits, overcoats, full dress and tuxedo suits, and Cravanettes, etc., that when made to order were to bring $40, $45, $50, $60, $75 up to $100. In business for 28 years, we have contracts with the leading tailors in all large cities. Thus our garments come from over 3,000 tailors, always assuring a plentiful supply of the richest, snappiest, best fitting clothing in America. GEORGE'S TAILOR PARLORS, 14 Summer st., Branch of George's, 239 West 34th st., New York, which, in 1879 established and originated the sale of merchant tailors uncalled for garments. Open Saturday evenings.

Is the Country to Fight for Mr. Root's Swindling Asphalt Trust?

Let Us Hope We'll Have a Better Cause for Any Quarrel with Our Southern Neighbors

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

The newspapers and some public men have talked about sending fighting machines—war vessels and men—from the United States to Venezuela. The plan, it seems, is to use up United States men and money to frighten Castro, the Venezuelan boss.

Here and there an effort is made to stir patriotic fire in the United States bosom. But if any fire has been stirred, we advise it to cool off.

There is talk of picking a fight with Venezuela, a small nation, BECAUSE WE HAVE MR. ROOT FOR OUR SECRETARY OF STATE, and because Mr. Root is the friend and the lawyer of dishonest trusts.

Mr. Root is the dear friend of the Asphalt Trust, and when decency shall send him back to private life and profitable private practice, if it ever does, he will undoubtedly be well rewarded by the Asphalt Trust for the work that he will do then, AND FOR THE WORK THAT HE IS DOING NOW, or trying to do.

The Asphalt Trust has a quarrel with Venezuela. And Mr. Root's object in planning a United States demonstration against Venezuela is TO COMPEL CASTRO TO SETTLE WITH THE ASPHALT TRUST ON AN ASPHALT TRUST BASIS.

The mere fact that Boss Tweed's Elihu Root is interested in a thing is enough to convince an ordinary American citizen who remembers him as the lawyer of Tweed and the lawyer of Ryan, and the shameless jackal of any man, that Root's side of the quarrel is the corrupt side.

However, we have more than Root's bad character and bad record to go by in this instance.

THE ASPHALT TRUST HAS INVARIABLY SWINDLED PEOPLE HERE AT HOME. It has swindled our big cities, it is notoriously a bribe-giving, city-swindling, thoroughly dishonest concern.

We KNOW that the Asphalt Trust is a thief in the United States. It has swindled every citizen at home. Why should we imagine that it is anything but a thief in Venezuela?

And why should even such a shameless creature as Elihu Root dare to talk of risking the lives of American sailors and the safety of American ships in a cowardly bullying of a little, friendly country in the name of that dishonest trust?

It is to be hoped that this big country will never have any war or quarrel with smaller neighbors in the South. But if war does come, let us hope that the cause of war will not be the dishonest claims of a dishonest trust. And let us hope that the promoter of the war will not be a Tweed lawyer with a Root record and pockets stuffed with corrupt trust money.

It is bad enough to have the trusts put the Tweed lawyer in the office of Secretary of State. It is to be hoped they will not succeed in having him use American sailors to make good their dishonest claims.

Two Hundred Dollars for a Short Letter

Mr. Pabst's Interesting Offer. A Valuable Discussion.

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Gustave Pabst, the great brewer, has written an interesting letter to the editor of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, who has granted permission to publish it in this newspaper. The letter follows:

To the Editor of the Cosmopolitan Magazine:

Dear Sir—Many thanks for your check for $200 in payment for my contribution on Temperance vs. Prohibition in the May number of the Cosmopolitan. As an amateur on literary work, and in public discussion, I prefer not to accept this payment.

But as I am very much interested in the whole question involved in the present drink legislation, and in a sane solution of one of our big problems, I will pay the two hundred dollars to the individual writing me the best short letter on that discussion in the Cosmopolitan.

The two-hundred-dollar prize will be awarded according to my judgment or that of a committee that I may appoint. I shall award the prize for the best brief, logical statement, whether it comes from an advocate or an opponent of prohibition—whether the writer sustains my side of the discussion in the Cosmopolitan or the Rev. Dr. Alison's side.

Letters written by those that have read my article in the Cosmopolitan may be addressed to me in care of Post Office Box 1402, New York City. Yours very truly,

GUSTAVE PABST.

Mr. Pabst, in his article in the May issue of the Cosmopolitan, discusses with Rev. Dr. Alison, General Secretary of the National Temperance Society, the question of temperance by self-control as opposed to prohibition—a question which is agitating all America at present.

It can scarcely be doubted that Mr. Pabst will cause widespread discussion by his offer set forth in the letter quoted above.

The competition is open to our readers as well as to others. We should be glad to see one of them secure the prize. What Mr. Pabst particularly desires is that prospective contestants familiarize themselves with the articles written by Dr. Alison and by himself in the May Cosmopolitan Magazine, and then address to him a brief letter setting forth their own opinions as to the merits of the case.

The great question is: Will men progress by cultivating their will power, or is it the better plan to put into effect absolute prohibition, THUS FORCING MEN to be temperate in spite of themselves?

Readers must remember that Mr. Pabst wishes in his competition a clear statement founded on a careful analysis of the arguments advanced by himself and by Dr. Alison. He will not take into consideration, in awarding the prize, any letters other than those written by men or women who have read the articles in the May Cosmopolitan. Letters should be addressed to Gustave Pabst, Box 1402, New York City.

Where Is Grace Brown's Soul?

SCORES of letters have been received in answer to the question raised in these columns: "The Soul of Grace Brown—Where Is It?" A few views of the controversy are here published. A large number of opinions on both sides of the question will be printed in Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN.

LOST IF UNREPENTANT

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Being a constant reader of the AMERICAN, I went to express my opinion on the fate of Grace Brown's soul. I think that the Rev. Mr. McIlvary is absolutely right in his statements, and I am astonished to see clergymen denouncing it if Grace Brown died unrepentant. If she died unrepentant she is lost, for no sinner shall inherit the kingdom of God.

It is impossible for me to believe that either Grace Brown or Gillette are received according to the Gospel. Both are in the grave, but on judgment day if Grace Brown died unrepentant, which I doubt she did, her portion shall be in the last resurrection; and Gillette, if he repented and accepted Christ as his Saviour, trusted him, believed on him, died a saved man. For if we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins.

REV. H. E. DROOKER.

Nashua, N. H.

THINKS BOTH LOST

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Both their souls would be saved if they believed in Jesus as their Saviour. It is all right to confess their sins, but that never saves anyone except they believe from their heart that Jesus paid for their sins when he died on the cross on Calvary. Gillette had more time to get converted, but poor Grace Brown went out of this world without time to look into Jesus.

I am afraid we will never see either of those two in heaven, but Jesus is the one who will judge on the great day.

There is no place between heaven and hell. I do believe they both are lost for ever.

MEIN LIEBER LOOEY:—Ve haf receifed your letter from Tacoma and ve vas glat your healt' is still playing your accompaniment.

Your mother says in dis letter I should mention at you a few leedle ideas vich I haf chotted down vich is as following, to vit:—

Vot is to be vill be if you haf a pull.

A mean man chenarily has a mean time mit his money.

Truth vas mighty, but it ain'd mighty enough to be popular.

* * *

It doan'd took two to make a quarrel mit der man dot is his own vorst enemy.

* * *

Sometimes it vas more trouble to avoid trouble den it vas to let der trouble valk in und get you.

* * *

It vas a strange ding, but ven der vorld gifs a man der frosty face he stops cutting ice.

* * *

If at fairst you doan'd succeed, efery udder failure in der vorld vill begin to talk aboudt you.

* * *

If at fairst you do succeed, der failures vill talk aboudt you anyway.

Right vill conkker might, but it has to be carried into a drug store after der fight.

It vas vonderful how some peoples can get dare feets tangled up in der fringe of Society mitoudt rippling der fringe.

* * *

Society is divided into two classes—dem dot inwites you to deir houses und dem dot cut you ould. Der fairst is der most popular and lovable. Der latter is only a reflected light, vich ve could call a shine.

* * *

An ounce of apology is vorth a pound of beefsteak for der black eye.

Der best succeeders in dis vorld is dem dot depend on home-made success.

* * *

In America eferyvun is free—der street car conductor is free to step on der feets of der passengers; der brakeman is free to invent new stations on der elevated road; der grocer is free to put sand in der sugar; but most of all der gas company is free to have a meter mitoudt a conscience.

The Great Question!

By James J. Montague

THE baseball reporter was slowly and surely
Directing his steps through the gathering gloam,
Intending thereafter to slumber securely
And dream pleasant dreams in his far Harlem home.
A beetle-browed footpad crept softly behind him,
And tapped, with a sandbag, the back of his hair,
And, oh! the embarrassed reporter resigned him
To pillage and murder and death then and there!
Fear not, gentle reader, there flowed not a gore—
The footpad said gently: "Say, cull, wot's de score?"

SO joyously onward the baseball reporter
His course toward the night-riding Subway addressed;
He passed up the cabmen, preferring a shorter
And uglier route to his haven of rest.
The trolley he took made a frantic endeavor
To jump over another upon the same track;
The motorman, though he was gifted and clever,
Succeeded but poorly, and perished, alack!
But as he succumbed, he was heard to exclaim
To the baseball reporter: "Say, who win the game?"

THE FIRST PLAY

Let Us Hear More of the Foolish Father

BY WINIFRED BLACK

I WISH somebody would hire a few women to write paragraphs for the funny papers.

I'm getting so used to the joke from the masculine point of view that sometimes it gets just the least bit in the world tiresome.

We hear a great deal about the jealous mother-in-law—I wish some one would rise up and make a few remarks about the jealous father—not the father-in-law, just the plain father.

How many girls do you know whose fathers have a ray of sense about them when the girls get somewhere around eighteen or so?

Daughter is all right as long as she's little and chubby or long-legged and gangling and can do as she pleases when she pleases and nobody but mother will worry about her.

But the minute daughter gets to be attractive and pretty, father's masculine jealousy wakes up and he turns green at the very idea that daughter can be in a minute away from him.

What if the young man, who's beginning to find important business at your house these Spring evenings, hasn't a bank account as heavy as yours, Mr. Dee-in-the-manger?

He hasn't your bald head, either, or the hard lines about his eyes.

He's a good deal such a fellow as you were at his age. Don't you remember how Her father hated you and did everything he could to make Her hate you?

It didn't do him a bit of good to try, did it? You married Her anyway and marched Her out of the house away from him right under his nose, and ever since the very first week that you were married he's been the best friend you've had in the world.

Her mother was different. She liked you from the very first, and used to tell father harmless little tubs to give daughter a chance to get five minutes alone with you.

She was all smiles and tears and congratulations over the engagement; the minute you were married she and father changed places.

And now father tells harmless little fibs to keep mother from telling your wife what a brute she has married. Human nature is a strange and an inexplicable thing, and there's just as much of it in men as there is in women.

Tell us a few things about the jealous father, Mr. Paragrapher, or else hire that daughter of yours, who doesn't dare mention a man's name in your presence, to do it. It's about time we heard something from that side of the house.

From women's eyes this doctrine I derive:
They sparkle still the right Promethean fire;
They are the books, the arts, the academies,
They show, contain, and nourish all the world.
